Porridge today, Gromit Tuesday. Mice, do you think? I think I'll make my own porridge. Where are we? Have you been peckish during the night? Only someone's been at me cheese. Well, I don't know. There's something very fishy going on. Do you think we should get the pest control people in? Hello, Wallace and Gromit's Wash and Go window cleaning service. May we be of assistance.

Speaker 2

Hello. Yes, my windows could do with a jolly good clean. The wool shop in the High Street. Soon as you can.

Speaker 1

On our way, Madam. Need wool, don't you, lad?

Speaker 2

Thank you for coming so quickly.

Speaker 1

Oh, dear.

Speaker 2

Oh, allow me, please.

Speaker 1

Oh, I'm sorry. Oh, I'll soon have these cleared up. There's no trouble. How embarrassing.

Speaker 2

This is Preston, my dog.

Speaker 1

All right, pooch. It won't take a minute. Well, I...

Speaker 2

What was it you wanted?

Speaker 1

I...

Speaker 2

Ramsbottom. Wendoline Ramsbottom.

Speaker 1

Oh, charming. I'm Wallace. The windows. Is this place yours?

Speaker 2

My father left it to me, along with his debts and a few other things. He was an inventor.

Speaker 1

Never. Well, I do a bit of that myself. I see they still haven't caught those sheep rustlers yet. Still, you've got plenty of wool, Your dog's waiting. I'd better see to him. The bounce has gone from his bungee.

Speaker 2

Oh, the spanking. You've done a grand job.

Speaker 1

Windows are our speciality. Let's get that kettle on. Good grief! What's all this? Burglars? Thieves? What a mess. I've never seen anything like it. Headphants above Gromit. Look at this. The little chap must be really hungry. Oh, come over here, lad. No need to be sheepish. We'll have to get you cleaned up. There, nothing to fret over, just a quick shampoo. We've tested this old grommet, haven't we, lad? Right, off we go then.

Speaker 3

Do something, Robby. Oh, it's too late now. Turn it off, Robby.

Speaker 1

Brilliant, Gromit. I've seen this a bit tight here and there. Looks okay to me. We'll call him Sean, Come on, Sean. Grommet, you know we're doing the clock tomorrow. Sorry, Grommet. That was a bit thick. Back in the chick grommet, won't be long. They just thought I'd...

Speaker 2

Tell me about windows.

Speaker 1

Well, it's only temporary, you understand.

Speaker 2

Oh, really?

Speaker 1

Oh, yes, I'm inventing mostly. Only...

Speaker 2

Oh, what sort of inventions?

Speaker 1

Well, sort of...

Speaker 2

Daddy would love to have met you. Poor Daddy.

Speaker 1

Of all the women I've met, not that there have been many.

Speaker 3

You see, what I'm?

Speaker 1

Trying to say in the manner of speaking is...

Speaker 3

All the ladies... The same time next week.

Speaker 1

Caught bang to right you were. You've really let us down this time, lad.

Speaker 3

Hey, give over.

Speaker 1

Shoo! Shoo! Go on with you.

Speaker 2

I'm sorry about this.

Speaker 1

For what?

Speaker 2

Nothing. Just stay away from me. From my shop. And my silly, silly windows.

Speaker 1

Where will I?

Speaker 3

Forget me. I'm no good for you.

Speaker 2

I'm so sorry about Gromit.

Speaker 3

Ow! Stop! Ooh. Oh, Gromit. Oh, grummy. Oh, grummy.

Speaker 1

Brilliant teamwork, lads. I suppose you'll have to skip the country now. A fugitive, You'll be hunted down like, well, a dog.

Speaker 2

Stop it. Stop it, Preston. I want no more of this rustling. Oh, it wasn't so bad when it was just the wool, but this is evil. Daddy didn't create you for this.

Speaker 3

Out.

Speaker 2

You're supposed to protect me. Let me out. You're not going to turn me into job meat.

Speaker 1

Stop meat.

Speaker 3

Help.

Speaker 1

Don't worry, Wendolyn.

Speaker 3

I'm on my way. We're at maximum speed.

Speaker 1

She won't go any faster.

Speaker 3

Wallis, help me! Don't worry, Wendoline.

Speaker 1

Everything's under control.

Speaker 3

Be careful, Sean. Hey, steady on. Single smile. Get yourselves organised down there. Watch out, lads.

Speaker 1

Where'd you get that from? That's my machine. I've got patent pending on that.

Speaker 3

Help! Oh, the stone! Help! Where's Gromit? Something. Well done, Gromit.

Speaker 1

That will teach him.

Speaker 2

He's malfunctioning.

Speaker 1

Mal what?

Speaker 2

Malfunctioning. Preston is a cyber dog.

Speaker 1

Cyber what?

Speaker 2

A robot. Daddy created him for good, but he's turned out evil.

Speaker 1

It's a sheet-mincing thing. Now that's clever.

Speaker 3

Ow! Do something, Wally. Duck.

Speaker 1

Where?

Speaker 3

Ow.

Speaker 1

I thought we were all for the can then.

Speaker 2

I couldn't pass by without saying thank you. He's just like he used to them.

Speaker 1

Oh, don't mention it. Thanks, Booch. Give me a shout if he goes wrong again.

Speaker 2

You're very kind.

Speaker 1

Oh, why'd you come in? We were just about to have some cheese.

Speaker 2

Oh, no, not cheese. Sorry it brings me out in a rash. Can't stand the stuff.

Speaker 1

Not even Wensleydale.

Speaker 2

Got to be on our way. Come on, Preston. Goodbye.

Speaker 3

Chuck.

Speaker 1

What's wrong with Wensley Dale? Talking of which. All the more for us, and not a sheep to worry us. Get off me cheese! Get off! Get off! Gromit! Gromit! Go for him! Gromit! Get off with you.

Speaker 4

Well, this just proves baking is a dangerous business. There's a serial killer on the loose and a dozen bakers dead. But can Wallace and Gromit save the day? A matter of loaf and death, next.

Speaker 5

There's a magical thread that connects us.
